

SILVER SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY
CONSTANCE AND MARTIN SILVER PROFESSOR OF POVERTY STUDIES AND FACULTY
DIRECTOR OF THE MCSILVER INSTITUTE

The New York University Silver School of Social Work (SSSW) invites applications for the Constance and Martin Silver Professor of Poverty Studies and Faculty Director of the McSilver Institute. The 9-month tenured appointment will begin September 1, 2023.

The successful candidate will be named Faculty Director of the McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research, will teach in the school's academic programs (BSW, MSW, PhD, and/or DSW), and will be engaged in university and professional service and leadership.

The McSilver Institute at New York University is nationally recognized for its scholarship and policy efforts and is an endowed research center whose mission is to disrupt generational poverty through research, policy and action. As Faculty Director of the NYU McSilver Institute, the ideal candidate will have an extensive research portfolio, will have demonstrated capacity to secure federal funding for research and will have expertise in the management of the federal grants process. The successful candidate will also be expected to lead the development of the McSilver Institute's interdisciplinary poverty research agenda and to mentor research staff, junior faculty and doctoral students. Ideally, the candidate will possess subjective matter expertise and scholarly work and writing in areas related to the social determinants of health/poverty (e.g., housing). They will also have experience advancing policy and have experience working with policy makers. A demonstrated commitment and research focus on poverty, racial inequality, gender equity, and advancing mentorship, pay equity, diversity and inclusion is ideal. The successful candidate will also provide service to the school and university. Salary is commensurate with the qualifications of the candidate.

A doctoral degree in social work or a related field is required, as is an outstanding record of scholarship commensurate with the career level of the candidate. The successful candidate will be an experienced and respected scholar with a track record in extramural funding and a proven record of leadership in research. Experience in research administration and leadership are preferred.

Established in 2007, the McSilver Institute is the brainchild of Dr. Constance McCatherin Silver, a New York University alumnus and trustee who was determined to establish a top-notch research institute to not only contribute to the intellectual discourse, but to also find solutions that would disrupt generational poverty in communities most affected by inequality and injustice. NYU McSilver recognizes the interrelatedness of race and poverty and is dedicated to dismantling structural racism and all forms of systemic oppression. In addition to its research portfolio, NYU McSilver works in New York and nationally on a number of technical assistance, training and evaluation projects that involve multiple areas of expertise including: health homes/care management, social determinants of health screening, program evaluation, trauma-informed/resiliency-based care, managed care implementation, behavioral health business best practices, family peer support, engagement, value-based payments, payment reform and family-strengthening interventions. The institute employs over forty full time staff members and regularly hosts student interns. The institute is funded mostly through federal and state grants and has been awarded over $62 Million since its establishment.

SSSW is an international leader in social work research and education and offers outstanding support for scholarship. Located in Greenwich Village on Washington Square Park and in one of the world's great urban research universities, the SSSW is one of the 14 schools and colleges of NYU, the largest private university in the USA, with students from all 50 states and more than 100 nations. The diversity of the academic community and the incomparable resources of New York City enrich the academic programs and campus life of NYU and the SSSW. NYU is a Global University with branch campuses in Abu Dhabi and Shanghai and additional satellite campus sites in Africa, Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.

In compliance with NYC's Pay Transparency Act, the annual base salary range for this position is $125,000 - $195,000. New York University considers factors such as (but not limited to) scope and responsibilities of the position, candidate's work experience, education/training, key skills, internal peer equity, as well as market and organizational considerations when extending an offer.

Review of applications will begin immediately. We invite applicants to apply via Interfolio and upload a letter of application, curriculum vitae, and an equity, diversity, and inclusion statement at the following link: <http://apply.interfolio.com/119165>. Applicants should also upload a research statement, a teaching statement, and two representative publications as "Additional Documents" for their application to be considered complete. All applications will be reviewed until the positions are filled.
